RE: Site Inspection, Dell Pulsipher, Unpermitted Building Stone Site, Washington County, Utah

Date of Inspection: April 19, 2000
Time of Inspection: 4:30 P.M.
Conditions: Clear and warm
Participants: Doug Jensen, DOGM

Purpose of Inspection: Check for activity at unpermitted site on state lands.

The site is in the hills Northeast of the city of Bloomington. The roads that are shown on the quadrangle map have changed considerably, due to housing construction. The route to the site was from the Bloomington exit off I-15 to Bonanza Road. Left at this intersection to Man-O-War Road, then right on this road across the Virgin River to Bloomington Drive. Then turn right at this intersection following the circular road to Navajo Drive. This street will take you out of the housing to the hills behind. The second road to the right off this dirt road will take you to the top of a ridge. Turn right on the ridgetop and follow this ridge down towards Bloomington. The site is in the hills near the town.

There were no signs of recent mining activity within the area that I could see from the ridgetop. In talking to John Blake, Mr Pulsipher had complained of people removing rock from his lease. I couldn't see any indication of this activity, but I was unable to see the entire half section from my vantage point.

Left the area to return to St. George.
